DEDICATION

Synapsis, 1981, is dedicated to those who have gone before; given of themselves when others wanted so much to take, and who realized that Doctor, also means teacher.

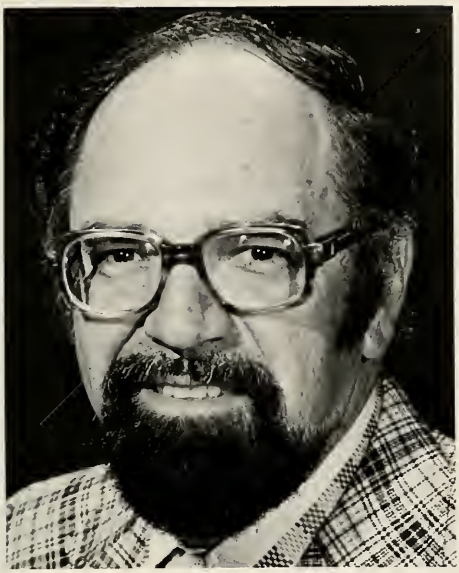
WE REMEMBER



Paul Elinson, D.O.

"Death doesn't end
a relationship . . .

. . . it just changes it.

James Sheetz, D.O.

The student starts as a practitioner, as an observer of disordered machines, with the structure and orderly functions of which he is perfectly familiar. Teach him how to observe, give him plenty of facts to observe, and the lessons will come out of the facts themselves. Each case has its lesson — a lesson that may be, but is not always, learnt, for clinical wisdom is not the equivalent of experience. The whole art of medicine is in observation; but to educate the eye to see, the ear to hear and the finger to feel takes time. And to start a man on the right path is all that we can do. Variability is the law of life. As no two faces are the same, so no two bodies are alike, and no two individuals react alike and behave alike under the abnormal conditions which we know as disease. This is the fundamental difficulty in the education of the physician, and one which he may never grasp, or he takes it so tenderly that it hurts, instead of boldly accepting the axiom of Bishop Butler, more true of medicine than of any other profession: 'Probability is the guide of life.'

With thanks to Sir William Osler, M. D., 1900

THE LAND OF ENCHANTMENT

Original oil painting for Post illustration, December 22, 1934.
Collection New Rochelle Public Library, New York

We desperately need to reaffirm the human values in medical practice. We must not be so sterile in our approach to disease that we overlook man. The patent is more than his body, he is more than his disease. A true physician cannot be a physician to the body alone. He must be concerned with the internal homeostasis which relates to the patient's mind, his spirit, his soul. Some may say that these words sound well to the ears, and that they are what everyone obviously believes. But our deeds fall too far short of our beliefs. We are too often diverted by the siren song of financial security and professional complacency. But can we be morally justified in being complacent in our world? Can we bask in the glory of having extended so dramatically the human life span, when we have failed so often to make that life worth living.

George W. Northup, D. O., 1980

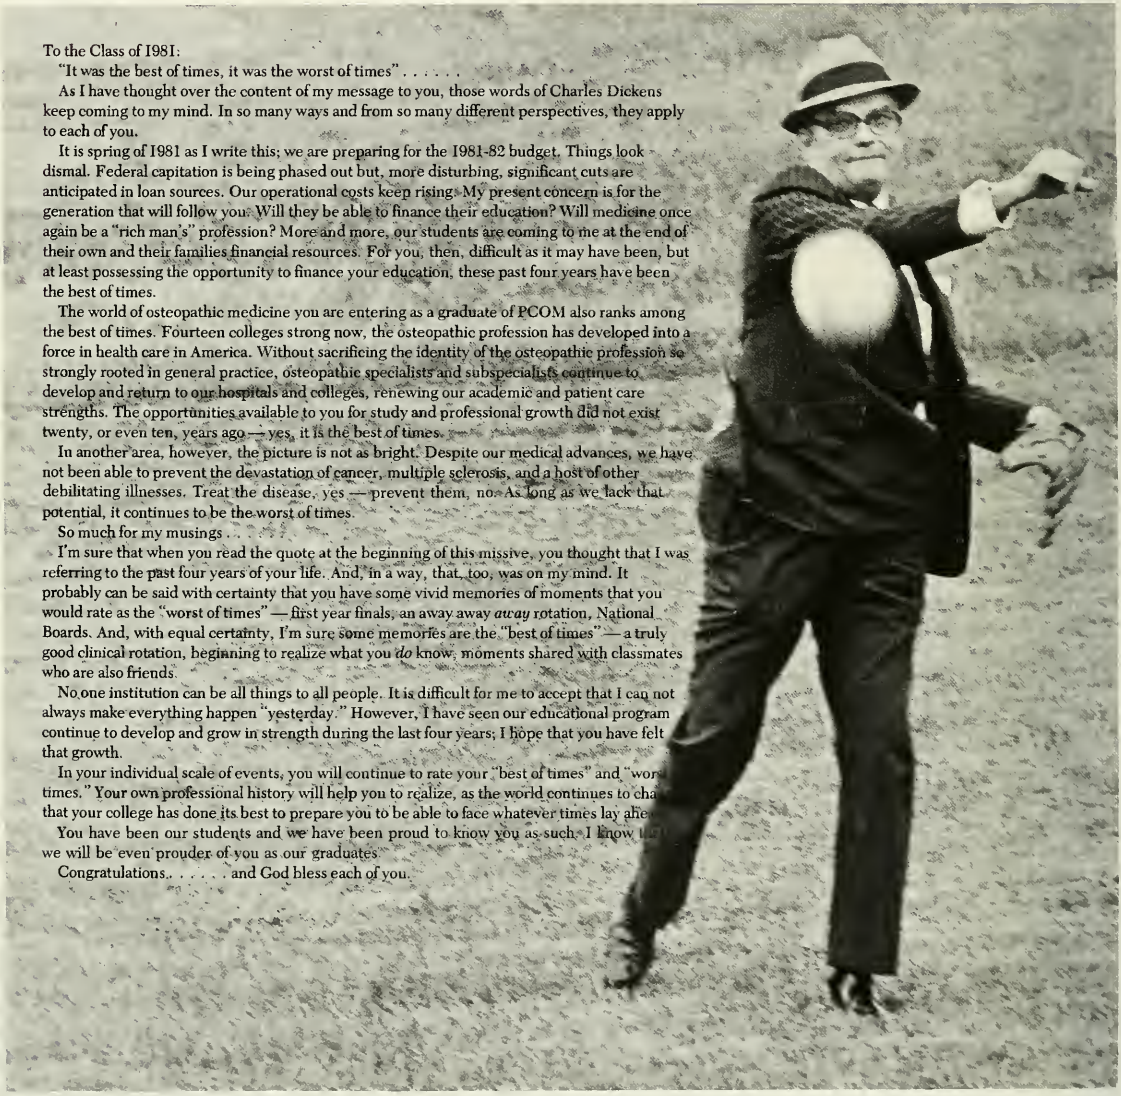
THE PRESIDENT



To the Class of 1981:

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times" . . . . . .

As I have thought over the content of my message to you, those words of Charles Dickens keep coming to my mind. In so many ways and from so many different perspectives, they apply to each of you.

It is spring of 1981 as I write this; we are preparing for the 1981-82 budget. Things look dismal. Federal capitation is being phased out but, more disturbing, significant cuts are anticipated in loan sources. Our operational costs keep rising. My present concern is for the generation that will follow you. Will they be able to finance their education? Will medicine once again be a "rich man's" profession? More and more, our students are coming to me at the end of their own and their families financial resources. For you, then, difficult as it may have been, but at least possessing the opportunity to finance your education, these past four years have been the best of times.

The world of osteopathic medicine you are entering as a graduate of PCOM also ranks among the best of times. Fourteen colleges strong now, the osteopathic profession has developed into a force in health care in America. Without sacrificing the identity of the osteopathic profession so strongly rooted in general practice, osteopathic specialists and subspecialists continue to develop and return to our hospitals and colleges, renewing our academic and patient care strengths. The opportunities available to you for study and professional growth did not exist twenty, or even ten, years ago — yes, it is the best of times.

In another area, however, the picture is not as bright. Despite our medical advances, we have not been able to prevent the devastation of cancer, multiple sclerosis, and a host of other debilitating illnesses. Treat the disease, yes — prevent them, no. As long as we lack that potential, it continues to be the worst of times.

So much for my musings . . . . . .

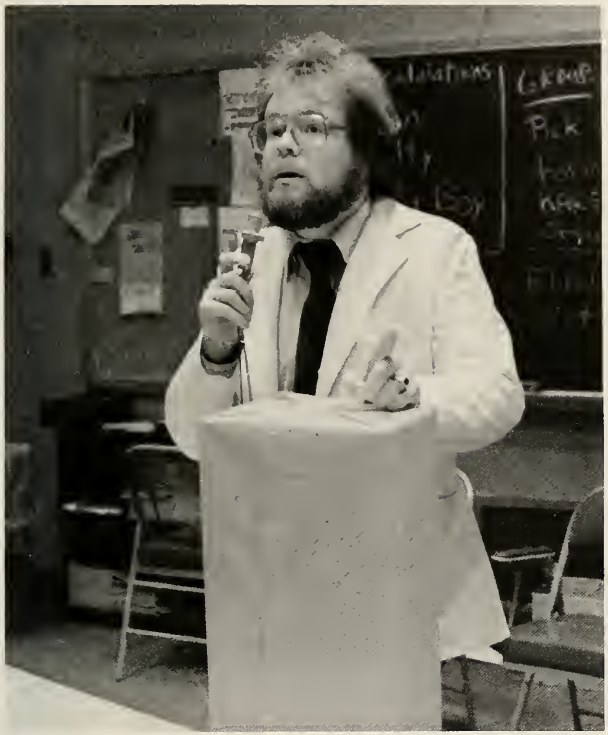
I'm sure that when you read the quote at the beginning of this missive, you thought that I was referring to the past four years of your life. And, in a way, that, too, was on my mind. It probably can be said with certainty that you have some vivid memories of moments that you would rate as the "worst of times" — first year finals, an away away away rotation, National Boards. And, with equal certainty, I'm sure some memories are the "best of times" — a truly good clinical rotation, beginning to realize what you do know, moments shared with classmates who are also friends.

No one institution can be all things to all people. It is difficult for me to accept that I can not always make everything happen "yesterday." However, I have seen our educational program continue to develop and grow in strength during the last four years; I hope that you have felt that growth.

In your individual scale of events, you will continue to rate your "best of times" and "worst times." Your own professional history will help you to realize, as the world continues to change, that your college has done its best to prepare you to be able to face whatever times lay ahead.

You have been our students and we have been proud to know you as such. I know that we will be even prouder of you as our graduates.

Congratulations. . . . . and God bless each of you.



"BUY IT!"

Four years is a big chunk of anyone's lifetime. For us, it presented the unique challenge of obtaining the degree of knowledge needed to heal the afflictions of our neighbors. Memorizing facts is important, but it is only a part of the educational experience.

Our two years in the classroom taught us how to deal with ourselves and those sitting around us. We were able to work together and party together, learning that to help ourselves, we must help others. No task was too difficult, no mountain insurmountable, when individual personal feelings were thrown aside so that we could pull together. The clinical years honed this interdependency, when personal knowledge and experiences were shared for a common goal — to relieve, comfort, and sometimes cure our patients.

I am grateful to have been part of all of this, having in the process the opportunity to become an Osteopathic physician. I am proud not only to be part of the Class of 1981, but also to be given the privilege of being your chairman. Your cooperation and willingness to contribute made my role a pleasure. Too many times, it was left only for me to take the bows for your accomplishments. And in those sometimes insecure moments, the cries of "Buy it!" kept me going, realizing that I never completely lost your faith.

Thank you and may you find every happiness that life has to offer.

GROUP LEADERS

Elected, appointed, or defaulted, the group leader represents fifteen other classmates throughout the clinical years as both a student council representative and a conduit for information to and from the office of Clinical Education. In order to help coordinate schedules, fill out an endless procession of forms, present gripes about too many H. & P.'s and not enough teaching, the group leader takes every fourth Friday off to meet with Dr. Thome in order to discuss any pressing problems, and . . . to eat doughnuts.

My God Is There Controlling

William Watkins Reid, 1965

1. We search the star-lit Milky Way,
   A million worlds in rhythmic sway,
   Yet in our blindness some will say,
   "There is no God controlling!"

2. But as I grope from sphere to sphere,
   New wonders crowd the eye, the ear,
   And faith grows firmer every year:
   "My God is there, controlling!"

3. We probe the atoms for their cause,
   Explore the earth for Nature's laws,
   Yet seldom in our searching pause
   To think of God controlling.

4. Each flash of fact from out the night,
   Each burst of truth upon my sight
   That quickens awe or adds delight,
   Reveals my God controlling.

"A human being should be able to change a diaper, plan an invasion, butcher a hog, conn a ship, design a building, write a sonnet, balance accounts, build a wall, set a bone, comfort the dying, take orders, give orders, cooperate, act alone, solve equations, analyze new problems, pitch manure, program a computer, cook a tasty meal, fight efficiently, die gallantly . . . Do not confuse "duty" with what other people expect of you; they are utterly different. Duty is a debt you owe yourself to fullfil obligations you have assumed voluntarily. Paying that debt can entail anything from years of patient work to instant willingness to die. Difficult as it may be, but the reward is self-respect." — *Robert A. For being there during the rough times as well as the good. But most of all for your love and emotional support without which I could not have reached this goal.

"Believe nothing merely because you have been told it or because it is traditional or because you yourselves have imagined it. Do not believe what your teacher tells you merely out of respect for the teacher. But whatsoever, after due examination and analyzing you find to be conductive to the good, the benefit, the welfare of all beings — that doctrine believe and cling to and take as your guide."

Be cheerful, sir.
Our revels now are ended. These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits and
Are melted into air; into thin air;
And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capped towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve,
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind. We are such stuff
As dreams are made on, and our little life
Is rounded with sleep.

Because I know that time is always time
And place is always and only place
And what is actual is actual only for one time
And only for one place
I rejoice that things are as they are. . . .

Because I cannot hope to turn again
Consequently I rejoice, having to construct something
Upon which to rejoice.

I wish to express my deep love and appreciation to my family. There really isn't a proper way to say thank you, but to my wife Robin, my mother and father, my sisters; my mother —, father —, sisters — , and brothers-in-law, I can only say that without all of you this endeavor never could have been accomplished nor would it have been nearly as enjoyable. I owe a special thanks to my wife, Robin, who loved and nurtured me thru the long haul, making the task of medical school into the great experience of medical school; her patience allowed me to enjoy the adventure and learning of medical school. I owe a special thanks to my Mom and Dad, who stayed with me through every step of the process, always with love, good advice and a well-utilized, open ear and open mind.

To My Sister — whose help and understanding were always there when I needed it most.

To My Mother — whose financial and emotional support, especially during the past five years, provided a solid buttress against the world.

To My Father — who never lived to see the culmination of his and my dreams, but with his selfless lifestyle and devotion to my goals, shaped my life and made it all possible.

OSTEOPATHIC OATH

I do hereby affirm my loyalty to the profession I am about to enter.

I will be mindful always of my great responsibilty to preserve the health of my patients, to retain their confidence and respect both as a physician and a friend who will guard their secrets with scrupulous honor and fidelity, to perform faithfully my professional duties, to employ only those recognized methods of treatment consistent with good judgement and with my skill and ability, keeping in mind always nature's laws and the body's inherent capacity for recovery.

I will be ever vigilant in aiding in the general welfare of the community, sustaining its laws and institutions, not engaging in those practices which will in any way bring shame or discredit upon myself or my profession. I will give no drugs for deadly purposes to any person, though it be asked of me.

I will endeavor to work in accord with my colleagues in a spirit of progressive cooperation, and never by word or by act cast imputations upon them or their rightful practices.

I will look with respect and esteem upon all those who have taught me my art. To my college I will be loyal and strive always for its best interests and for the interests of the students who will come after me. I will be ever alert to further the application of basic biologic truths to the healing arts and to develop the principles of osteopathy which were first enunciated by Andrew Taylor Still.

Synapsis 1981 came into being in much the same way that Benjamin Franklin once characterized the incipient American Revolution," . . . like a bastard child — part improvised, part compromised." We improvised where we could; we compromised where we had to. Eager but ignorant, we began to assemble; we learned slowly, but hopefully well. We hope that through our efforts we've made you smile or jogged your memory a bit.

No effort of this magnitude reaches completion without a certain amount of organizational meetings, discussion, bitching, benevolent despotism, and unabashed anarchy. Our staff certainly fulfilled these criteria, invented a few more, and supported Pizza Town, Mamma's, and Five Points along the way. As editor-in-chief, I would be remiss if I did not make some passing comments on what it took to bring Synapsis 1981 to you.

SUE, your legwork to the College of Physicians and Surgeons should qualify you for membership there. A de facto Osler Scholar, you brought theme and a sense of art to the book; we are richer for your sensitivity.

MARC, you showed us that hard, steady work always pays off in the end. You added a sense of teamwork that we sometimes lost sight of.

MAD DOG, we've fought so damned much over the last eleven months — now it's time to make up. By far the most creative and least diplomatic, you proved indispensable. Thanks for fighting with me for a beautiful final copy.

RALPH, the $$ man, you paid for it. You made it happen, watched it happen, and probably wonder what the hell happened! Thanks for the pizzas, too. CAROLINE, for service above and beyond, God bless.

VINCE, you turned a thankless task, riding herd on an epidemic of senioritis, into a smooth, well-coordinated operation. Thank you very much for lending your time and talents wherever and whenever needed.

CHRIS, thanks for the photography and technical assistance.

DONNA, you put up with the headaches, the heartaches, and the prima donnas. Without you to guide us with your expertise, this book would have been collated by the note service.

To BILL, BECKY, JULIA, JACKIE, JOE, CAROL, SHARON, BOB, SAM, GARY, MARY, GEORGE, MARTY, and whomever I may have forgotten, I wish you Godspeed and happiness. You were my extra hands and fertile minds. Thank you.

In closing, I wish to the Administration and Faculty every success; to those we leave behind, I wish the best of luck; to my classmates, I hope that your careers provide their own challenges, and more importantly, their own rewards.

With love,

Pam

MICHIGAN OSTEOPATHIC MEDICAL CENTER BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE....

Michigan Osteopathic Medical Center, formerly, Osteopathic Hospitals of Detroit, Inc., is now offering a balanced internship program in surgery, internal medicine, neurology, pathology, ob/gyn, pediatrics, emergency medicine, radiology and anesthesiology. We offer residencies in family practice, surgery, ob/gyn, anesthesiology, internal medicine, psychiatry and radiology.

MOMC is now building a new $27 million hospital in Detroit. It will replace MOMC's current East and West Hospitals. The new facility will be a 240 bed acute-care hospital. The four-story building will contain 207,000 square feet.

The first floor will house outpatient, ancillary and support services and administrative offices. The second floor will be devoted to general services, dietary services, medical services and medical education. The top two floors will be for inpatients. The new facility is expected to open in 1982.

Why would you ever want to come to Warren, Ohio?

Location and Area — Northeastern Ohio — 60 miles southeast of Cleveland, 70 miles northwest of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The hospital serves a population of approximately 250,000 and is located in a growing metropolitan area.
Recreation — Golf, tennis, hunting, fishing, swimming, and skiing. Major league sports (football, baseball, basketball, hockey) approximately one hour away.
Housing — Ample housing five to ten minutes away from the hospital.
Hospital — 212 bed AOA approved full service hospital with coverage in every aspect of medicine.
Training — Hands-on policy. Intern training program permits an intern to do, not just observe. Constant medical supervision available. Upon completion of our intern program, you will have developed the confidence and skills of an excellent physician.

Call us. We have a reputation for being exceptionally straightforward with all intern and residency applicants.

"Congratulations, Class of 1981"
—Harvey M. Shapiro, Executive Director

Southeastern Medical Center
North Miami Beach

Formerly Osteopathic General Hospital, we've changed our name because we'll soon be the chief teaching hospital for the new Southeastern College of Osteopathic Medicine.

As a 224-bed acute care, general hospital, we offer externs, interns and resident physicians a myriad of clinical and educational opportunities with all the fringe benefits of our tropical South Florida setting.

The Community

Situated near the north border of Dade County, North Miami Beach is half way between Fort Lauderdale and Miami. The hospital is minutes away from the ocean and many miles away from urban hassles.

Recreation

With an annual average temperature of 75°, recreational activities abound. In the immediate area are three scuba diving schools, golf course, 22 tennis courts, water skiing school, deep sea fishing charters, two vita courses, Greynolds Park picnic areas, two lakes, five roller-skating rental shops, a dozen theatres and many restaurants.

Training Program

For the intern, Southeastern has 23 different rotating service opportunities. Specialty areas approved for resident physicians include: anesthesiology, family practice, general surgery, internal medicine, OB/GYN, orthopedic surgery, pathology, podiatry and urological surgery.

DesMoinesGeneralHospital

Des Moines General is a 250-bed hospital with both primary and secondary services at the intensive, acute and ambulatory levels. A strong medical staff (primary and specialty) has developed excellent and active patient care and medical education programs. The Hospital is accredited by the AOA, as are its five graduate medical education programs.
